I want to focus on the second part of this Gospel where Jesus said that whoever welcomes a prophet will receive a prophet's reward and whoever receives a righteous person will receive a righteous person's reward etc.

Kingdom Economics

By Jean Allen

I don't know if I've ever truly appreciated what Jesus was saying here until I read a modern translation of the text. "Accepting a messenger of God is as good as being God's messenger. Accepting someone's help is as good as giving someone help...The smallest act of giving or receiving makes you a true disciple. You won't lose out on a thing." (The Message translation)

That certainly blows the whole 'service only' mentality out of the water. We've always felt that the only way to be a good disciple of Jesus was to serve everyone else and to be on the receiving end as little as possible but, to Christ, it doesn't matter if you're giving or receiving as long as there is a loving flow of reciprocity happening. Jesus was saying, "We're all in this together." In other words, nobody has cornered the market on righteousness by being a servant. The recipients of every act of service are gaining equally as much as those who are serving. God's ways are not our ways!

Jesus was instructing his followers to operate on an established principle of the Kingdom. That is exactly how the Trinity operates in community with itself and with us. They give and receive love without measure and none of them are saying to themselves or to us, "You need to receive from me. I don't need to receive from you."

It's God's economy of discipleship and love.
