Remembrance Day

We remember those who gave their lives in service, and their families and friends who continue to pray and honour them.

The Gospel message this week is clear: stay awake, pay attention and be spiritually prepared. However, underscoring the whole message is the Wisdom Edge. There is more to this scripture than just being ready for any spiritual eventuality, be it the end times or otherwise. There is a call for wisdom. Not knowledge – wisdom.

Wisdom is the oil for the flame that lights our way, but very often people get confused between knowledge and wisdom. All the bridesmaids in the Gospel had knowledge, even the ones who ran out of oil. They knew that at some unknown point the bridegroom would come and that they always had to be ready to leave suddenly.

This knowledge of the traditions was what brought all the bridesmaids to the right place at the right time, engaged in all the right motions. But five waited with knowledge and wisdom while five waited with just knowledge. The ones with just knowledge of the tradition had no real inner attachment to the possibilities of what the future could bring so they didn't bother to have more than barely enough provisions. They waited because that was the ritual. It was the way it was always done.

Wisdom goes beyond the way things have always been done; it looks for the spirit behind them, seeks the depths, senses the promises, envisions the unforeseeable and listens for the unheard. Wisdom dwells in the spaces between the black and white of knowledge. Wisdom is a gift, one that we should all seek constantly because it is a light that will keep us ready. We can only receive it if we ask for it.

Anyone can seek wisdom and what is so wonderful is that the most illiterate peasant can be full of amazing spiritual wisdom. Conversely, the most knowledgeable person can be very much lacking in spiritual wisdom. Wisdom delights in the fact that God is always the same but always new. Wisdom teaches us how to wait: with the oil of patience, full of expectation and with joyful hope.

Seek Wisdom because she always seeks you.

Pope St. Leo the Great

November 10

The pontificate of Pope Leo I spanned the middle of the fifth century (440-461), an era marked by disturbances in the world and in the Church. One of the most famous events in his papacy was in 452, when the whole of the Italian peninsula was trembling in the face of invasion by Attila the Hun. Already, large parts of northern Italy had fallen; the cities of Aquileia, Padua, and Milan were conquered, sacked, and razed to the ground. As Attila, camped near Mantua, on the Mincio River, he met Leo, the Bishop of Rome. According to a later legend, during the negotiations, Attila had a vision of the Apostles St. Peter and St. Paul, carrying drawn swords, and threatening Attila if he dared to attack the city of Rome. The story is portrayed in the Apostolic Palace, in frescoes by Raphael. Three years later, Pope Leo had to stand without human aid again, before a conquering army. Genseric, a Vandal king. Although Leo could not persuade him to spare the city, he convinced him to spare the Archbasilica of St John Lateran, and the Basilicas of Sts. Peter and Paul. The city was captured, but thousands of innocent people were saved when they took refuge in the Christian edifices.

Peter has spoken through Leo

Within the Church, Pope Leo was dedicated to the preservation of the teachings handed down from the Apostles. His greatest triumph was the Ecumenical Council held in Chalcedon (modern Kadiköy, Turkey). There the Council Fathers recognised and re-affirmed the truth of the union of two natures, divine and human, in the one Person of Jesus Christ. Leo himself had proclaimed this truth in a letter originally addressed to Flavian, Patriarch of Constantinople. When Leo's "Tome" was read at Chalcedon, the Council Fathers cried out "Peter has spoken through Leo!"

Theologian and pastor

St. Leo was an ardent supporter and promoter of the Primacy of the See of Peter. In almost 100 surviving sermons and letters, the "Great Pope" shows himself as both a theologian and a pastor: attentive to the importance of communion between the churches, but never forgetting the needs of the faithful. It was his care and concern for ordinary women and men that animated the works of charity he accomplished in an era marked by famine, poverty, injustice, and pagan superstition. In all his actions, he strove to "uphold justice with constancy," and to "offer clemency with love" – all in the name of Jesus, since "without Christ we can do nothing, but with Him, we can do all."

A Pope of firsts

Leo's pontificate was marked by a number of firsts: He was the first Pope named Leo; the first Pope to be remembered as "the Great" (later, Gregory I and Nicholas I would also be accorded the honour); the first Pope whose sermons have come down to us; and he is one of only two Popes (the other is Gregory) to be recognised as a Doctor of the Church. When he died in 461, he became the first Pope buried in the St Peter's Basilica. His relics are preserved in the new St Peter's, near the Altar of the Chair, in a chapel dedicated to the "Madonna of the Column."

St. Leo I is the patron saint of Roman Catholic doctrinal teaching; pastoral leadership; public administration; defending the faith against heresy; and the patron saint of popes and confessors.

St. Josaphat
November 12

Born 1580 in western Ukraine in Volhynia to Orthodox Christian parents, John Kuntsevych did not become "Josaphat" until later as a monk.

Although the Eastern churches began to separate from the Holy See in 1054, a union existed after the 15th century Ecumenical Council of Florence. By John's birth, Slavic Orthodox Christians had become strongly anti-Catholic.

Although trained as a merchant's apprentice, John felt drawn to traditional Byzantine monasticism. Taking the monastic name of Josaphat, he entered a Ukrainian monastery in 1604. The young monk then took on the ambitious task to re-incorporate the Eastern Orthodox tradition with the Catholic Church. Recognizing the urgent pastoral needs of the people, he produced catechisms and works of apologetics, while implementing overdue reforms of the clergy and attending to the needs of the poor. Josaphat's exemplary life and zeal for the care of souls won the trust of Orthodox Christians. However, his mission was controversial, and others were led to believe lurid stories and malicious suggestions made about him.

Tensions between supporters and opponents began to escalate, and on a Fall day in 1623, an Orthodox priest shouted insults outside the archbishop's residence. Josaphat had him removed, but the man assembled a mob in the town. They arrived and demanded the archbishop's life. Unable to escape, Josaphat died praying for the men who shot and then beheaded him before dumping his body in a river. Josaphat's body was discovered incorrupt, five years later. St. Josaphat was canonized in 1867.
